Why access to education?
- Our group members have been fortunate enough to take access to education for granted
- Early education is extremely important in young children's academic lives
- Education is also a building block for other parts of their lives

Why Book-drive?
- Books and stories are a way for families to bond
- People buy and read books and just leave them on the bookshelf, these books could be reused and used for a good cause
- How we collected books

Why The Washburn Center for Children (WCC)?
- WCC serves as a therapy site for the community
- WCC provides more than just education, they also provide support and hope for the families
- WCC allows families to take borrowed books home and even rewards families with free books
- Helping provide a resource so that kids may be more successful

Experiences working together
- We've gotten to meet people that we might not have otherwise met
- Our group developed great dynamics while striving to accomplish this common goal
- Working with others made the goal less daunting and appear more achievable
- We successfully split up tasks and allowed individuals to fall into important roles

Spring Service Project 2011
Jess Padniewski, Mekenna Miller, Kengkue Xiong, Mohamad Helmy, Desmond Cariveau, Melissa Lim, Benjamin Pilkey, Joe Lahti- Peer Mentor