I am writing to share with your students opportunities with the Journal of Young Investigators (JYI).

Funded by the National Science Foundation and Burroughs Wellcome fund, JYI is an international, peer-reviewed journal that is managed entirely by and for undergraduate students from across the world. With JYI, undergraduates may submit research, review research, and conduct science journalism.

We invite students from diverse backgrounds ranging from the social sciences to the physical sciences and engineering to apply to our editorial staff. We also have opportunities on our corporate board for students interested in the management of non-profit organizations.

Currently, we are looking to hire for the following positions:

- Chief Operating Officer
- Copy Editor
- News and Careers Editor
- Physical Sciences, Mathematics, and Engineering Associate Editor
- Psychology and Social Sciences Associate Editor
- Data Officer
- Development Officer
- Communications Officer
- Operations Manager
- Graphic Artist

For more about the opportunities we offer, visit https://www.jyi.org/join/ourteam or contact info@jyi.org.

Please do not hesitate to contact us with any questions and thank you for your time.

Veeraj Shah,
Chief Communications Officer
cco@jyi.org
Currently Hiring

Corporate Positions:
Communications Officer
Data Officer
Development Officer
Operations Manager

Editorial Positions:
Deputy Senior Research Editor
Lead Copy Editor
Copy Editor
News and Careers Editor
News Journalist
Physical Sciences, Mathematics, and Engineering Associate Editor
Psychology and Social Sciences Associate Editor
Layout Designer
Graphic Artist

Go to https://www.jyi.org/join/ourteam for more information